Back in 2017, I matched with him and before we went on a date, my coworker was like - you better look him up. So I did, saw that he is likely a sociopath. So naturally, I went on a date with him. 🤖 secretly it was so I could record him bc my life needs more drama.

I have a work phone and personal phone. I put them stacked on the bar in front of me and one of them was recording. About 5 mins into sitting there, he grabbed both of my phones and was like 'let me see these' and I was like OH SHIT, I'm caught but luckily I got the phones away from him. Like who does that?

Anyway, after like one drink, he's asked me to join him at his friends house. Which I declined. It's weird how he tries to get you to leave a place with him.

Anyway, don'tttttt go out with this guy.

No no no no no. Read the other post with comments. Went out with him. He's going to end up on Dateline one day. Not sure why he stays in LA so many women know he's a sociopath. I also know he uses fake profiles to access sites like this that talk about him. He's so narcissistic.

Dateline NBC (also known simply as Dateline) is a weekly American television reality legal show that is broadcast on . It was previously the network's flagship general interest news magazine, but now focuses mainly on stories with only occasional editions that focus on other topics. The program airs Fridays at 10:00 p.m.

(9:00 p.m. Eastern for special two-hour editions). Special weekend encore editions also air at 9 or 10:00 p.m. (two-hour editions at 7 and 8:00 p.m. depending on the night). One or two-hour feature-length editions sometimes air on any given scheduled evening, often to fill vacancies in the primetime schedule on the program's respective nights due to program cancellations. In February 2021, the program aired its first ever docuseries,

"The Widower", a five-hour true crime saga about a man who married six women, four of whom died.

Then again, I think this would boost his ego more.

Can't win with that guy.

The Tinder Swindler is a British documentary film directed by Felicity Morris and released to on on 2 February 2022. The documentary tells the story of the Israeli conman (born Shimon Hayut) who used the dating application to connect with individuals who he then emotionally manipulated into financially supporting his lavish lifestyle on the pretext he needed the money to escape his "enemies".

Plot and background

An Israeli man, born Shimon Hayut, travelled around Europe, presenting himself as the son of Russian-Israeli diamond mogul . He used the dating app to contact women as , and tricked them into lending him money that he would never repay. He would charm women with lavish gifts and take them to dinners on private jets using money he borrowed from other women he had previously conned. He would later pretend he was being targeted by his "enemies", often sending the same messages and images to each woman, indicating that he had just been attacked with a knife, but that his bodyguard had saved him and was hurt. He then asked his victims to help him financially due to the breach of 'security', supposedly hindering his use of his credit cards and bank accounts; the women would often take out bank loans and new credit cards in order to help. He would then use the money gained through the deception to lure new victims, while essentially operating a . Later, he would pretend to repay his victims by sending forged documents showing fake bank transfers and then break off contact with the victims. Sometimes he would go as far as threaten them and use manipulation to get more money from his victims. It is estimated that he swindled $10 million from people across the world.

The Chain Of Command: How Facebook's Libra, Bank Regulators, and PayPal Built A New World Currency

Two companies closely tied to Peter Thiel – PayPal and Facebook – have embarked on apparently unsuccessful efforts to create a “new world currency.” Yet, upon further examination, those efforts have actually been wildly successful and many recent events of significant in finance – including but not limited to the 2023 banking crisis – have arguably been orchestrated to facilitate the vision of Thiel and his early allies and the creation of a new paradigm for currency, one where privately issued money meets surveillance.

hemorrhaged away enough users that it now threatens many of the privileges the legacy system once enjoyed, mainly the available profits found by selling their data and leveraging their deposits.

The understanding that social networks are communication platforms, and that money itself is just a ledger upholding the communicative expression between users, led the social media giant Facebook to experiment with adding financial instruments to their vastly popular Messenger app. While Bitcoin and alternatives had been around for nearly a decade before Facebook's Libra was proposed, this was “the shot heard ‘round the world” for central bankers and regulators to sit up straight and take a novel payments system proposed by the world's largest social network seriously.

Yet, as Facebook soon found out, if you come at the king, you best not miss. Or at least this was the story that was told to the world: The U.S. regulatory system said “No” and that was that. However, this concluding piece to The Chain series, The Chain of Command, postulates that Libra was never intended to actually go to market as designed, but rather was meant to set the stage for clear regulation via legislation that would become the enabling environment for a decades-long attempt at creating a new world currency by the very same parties covered thus far in this series.

Libra, Diem and Facebook's Stablecoin

Sitting on a Caribbean beach during the winter of 2017, David Marcus was struck with the idea of creating a global digital currency to run on Facebook's Messenger. Marcus, who had sold his mobile payment provider Zong to PayPal for $240 million in 2011, and who had been introduced to Bitcoin in 2009, was certainly no spring chicken to the rapidly evolving FinTech and digital payments space. Within nine month of Zong's acquisition by PayPal, Marcus was named PayPal's president in April 2012. Then, in June 2014, Marcus was recruited by Facebook's Mark Zuckerberg to run their Messenger app. By the time the idea that would become Libra began to perminate during his 2017 vacation in the

Prior to his experience with PayPal and Facebook, Marcus had founded GTN Telecom, noted as being the "first to break Switzerland's telecommunications monopoly" in 1996. GTN Telecom was backed by the UK's 3i, a venture capital firm founded in 1945 by the Bank of England and "a syndicate of British banks," and was later sold in 2000 to WorldCom's World Access just two years before WorldCom would file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy after excessive accounting fraud. Marcus went on to found Echovox, a "mobile monetization company focused on monetizing web and traditional media audiences" via "transaction-enabled mobile services," shortly after the October 2000 sale

Marcus went on to found Echovox, a "mobile monetization company focused on monetizing web and traditional media audiences" via "transaction-enabled mobile services," shortly after the October 2000 sale of GTN. Zong was later spun off from Echovox. Bertrand Perez and Kurt Hemecker, two executives at Zong, would become part of the founding team at Libra alongside Marcus.

"In late 2009 when I first stumbled upon Bitcoin and read the white paper, I tried to play with it, but it was so cumbersome even for a geek like me. I just couldn't get it. So I kind of put it aside, brushed it aside, and then came back to it in 2012 when a good friend of mine who's often referred to as a Patient Zero in Silicon Valley for Bitcoin, [Xapo's] Wences Casares, basically started telling me more about it and telling me 'you have to actually spend time and understand this thing.' And so I did. And then I just couldn't stop thinking about it. I just couldn't stop thinking about this idea that you could actually be your own self-sovereign for digital value and you could move it around without any intermediary in between..."

Then in 2013 at PayPal, that's after Zong got acquired by PayPal and I was running it, I remember that Argentina asked us to actually stop the flow of money going out of the country from PayPal accounts located in Argentina. And I remember us having to comply because we were regulated entity, and seeing the price of Bitcoin rise the same day. And it was really clear that a lot of Argentines at the time were actually moving their funds into Bitcoin so that they would have control over their hard-
